

27, Via Pandolfini, Firenze.

FIRENZE

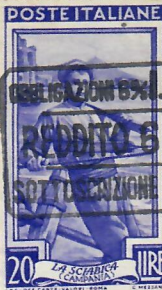

Wednesday. 3 p.m.

Una veduta dell'Arno col Ponte a S. Trinità

A view to the Arno with the bridge of St. Trinità

Vue de l'Arno avec le Pont à S. Trinità

Eine Ansicht des Arno und der Brücke S. Trinità.

We are continuing to have a lovely time here. When I wrote to you last night we were having coffee in our open air cafe on the Piazza di Repubblica listening to a band playing & watching people go by in horse-drawn carriages. It is a very lively town, people look well-dressed & prosperous on the whole. To-day we saw the famous Baptistery with wonderful bronze doors by Ghiberti, also the Palace of the Strozzi family (now the Ministry of Posts & Telegraphs), the Church of S. Maria Novella run by Dominican monks & the National Museum with statues by Michelangelo, Cellini, Donatello, etc. We expect to leave here on Friday morning. It is raining but everyone wears the waterproof of clothes. The bridge in this picture was unfortunately destroyed in the war, but otherwise the view is about the same. Much love from Joan & Nat.

Stamps: Firenze, Cesare Cappelloni, Milano

Mr. & Mrs. H.C. Pettet,

"Laverham",

Beech Road,

HASLEMERE

Surry.

INGHILTERRA.