 PLOUGHING A PADI FIELD

This picture shows a Malay padi farmer, ploughing his padi field by his buffalo, the only source of human power.

Penang "capital" Georgetown leads very English at the seaport with a hotel reminiscent of the Raffles, port administrative buildings, banks etc. There is a British built ferry system across the narrow channel across to Butterworth. It takes 15 min. across and lots of freighters are anchored in this area. One night I spent at a hotel on the beach, lovely colourful sunset. Writing this in the evening at airport, returning to KL. Love from Maff
